Proposed Dispatch Regarding the Applical 111ty of the 1955 Legislative Pay Increase to Contract Personnel

- l. A draft of a dispatch to be sent to these stations utilizing contract personnel has seen forwarded to this office for occardination. This dispatch is intended to provide information regarding the application of the recent legislative pay increase to centract personnel.
- 2. The preposed dispatch does not, in the opinion of wis office, offer clear guidance as to the applicability of the legislative pay increase to contract agents (independent contractors). Puragraph 3 appears to invite consideration by Readquarters of requests for salary increases "substantially equal in essent to the legislative pay increases" to any or all contract personnel, whether such personnel are suployees or independent contractors. However, the paragraph them states that approval or disapproval of the request will have cognizance of, names other factors, "... the legal relationship of the individual in KRARK ..." It supposes to us that if the legal relationship is to taken into consideration in granting a commensurate introduce, the hapatch should define what difference the relationship will make in foresting on the requests. This was accomplished in a company of in-
- 3. CIA Notice 31-52, emuitled "Application of the Agency Pay Thorease of 24 October 1951 to Contract Personnel" first stated that the Director had approved salary increases for CIA employees. Purpoyeephs 2 and 3 of the Notice then reads
  - "2. This is not necessarily true of persons engaged under contract by CIA. Many, if not men, of each persons are not employees but are independent contractors. Further, the services being rendered have not been classified in accordance with the Classification Act of 1969 as to appropriate grade level. The salaries being paid are negotiated salaries and, in many instances, would be at variance with those prescribed for the pesitions had they been classified on a strict functional basis. Further, the qualifications of the incombents are frequently not appraisable in terms of the purely functional requirements of the positions.
  - "3. It is recognised, however, that certain persons engaged under contract may in fact be employees of CIA, may have been engaged at solary levels comparable to those at which the positions would have been classified, and, lastly, that the incombents may be qualified to hold the positions. If such conditions provail, it has been determined that those persons should receive the benefits of the pay increase authorized for appointed exployees."

The Notice continued on to es blish the basis and criteria for making the determination that certain contract personnel, called "contract agents", would receive the increase if they were, in fact, employees by common law standards of use. This appeared to be a seemi memor of headling the them existing problem of proper categorisation with a desirable degree of uniformity.

- 4. The language of the proposed dispatch establishes no guides as to which contrast personnel may receive the increase and will result in veried interpretations of its meaning. Consequently, some stations may consider the pay increase to be inapplicable to contract agents and submit no requests, others may raise false hopes by submitting all names. The only real promise held out is that by some arbitrary means, without amounced standards, "headquarters" will decide.
  - 5. Beyond a vegueness of direction, in the proposed disputch, this office raises these points for your considerations
    - (a) The intent of Congress in passing the recent pay increase was clearly to make it applicable to Federal exployees for reasons of increased cost of living in the last four years. It is our understanding that there are very fow, if any, extent contracts with contract agents which have not been either negotiated or reasons within that period. Considerations of most and perference are irrelevent in determining whether an assumt equivalent to the legislative pay increase should be given to independent contractors

      . . . they may be reverted at any time by adjusting the contract compensation:
    - (b) The contractual relationship established between this Agency and those individuals engaged as independent contractors is based on negetiated terms - which are or may be, completely unrelated to those emplements received by employees of the Agency. One of the major considerations prompting the Agency to use the independent enstractor category of personnel stems from the nature of the covert objectives to be accomplished. These objectives regains the utilisation of some personnel over whom immediate supervision of their activities is infeasible and the administrative complications attendant to employue status are to be avoided. With these individuals the Agency deliberately does not concern itself with econsiderations of evertime, nor does it require a 40hour week. These individuals are not granted Federal Mapleyee Life Impurance covarage, retirement benefits, in-grade promotions, tecure, and other frings benefits.

Implent, their emperenties is finelly necessary reflecting the open necessary growns in establishing the compensation of those factors growns in establishing the compensation which my be paid an employee. The Agency could not, during the term of their contracts, larer the stipulated contract compensation if stelf personnel wave enhanced to a legislative pay decrease. In the reverse, my grateitous increase of contract compensation, unrelated to perfectence, distorts the basic concept of the contractual schelerabily. If the enterprise of personnel we presently relatively pure, as we understant you consider them to be, granting as assest optivalent to the legislative pay increase to emirant spatealent to the legislative pay increase to distinction between the enterprise. To clarify this distinction, we believe, has been the major offert in the challed rution of contract personnel in the last four years.

6. In considering the views of this office out furth above, we should like to point out that our only consern in the matter is to maintain the legal integrity of the Agency's personnel entegrates. This office has no responsibility for determining "her mate" any type of contrast personnel is to be paid.
